Shorebird Resighting Database
Web-Based Data Management and Retrieval System for Reporting
Sightings of Uniquely Marked Shorebirds

Metadata Supplement for Banding/Resighting Extracts: Location Codes

First Revision (March 2011)

Background

A web-based data management system has been developed and implemented for storing and retrieving data about uniquely marked shorebirds. The data is stored in a SQLSERVER2000 database. The design of the entry system using both data forms and bulk uploads from Excel enables the tracking of individual birds based upon unique information. Birds may be marked as individuals with an engraved marker where codes are etched onto a flag or leg band. Some birds are also marked as individuals with a unique pattern of colorbands. In this case, a “code” is devised based on the colors. These individuals are identified through both banding and resighting. The capture information allows tracking by the metal bands and the engraved color markers placed on birds. The individuals can also be identified by resighting with spotting scopes and recording the unique combination of bird species, marker type/color and engraved code on the marker or pattern of colorbands. Custom programming creates and maintains the relationship of capture and resighting data, even when band changes are made to an individual, allowing the retrieval of data that details a bird’s recorded history.

This document is a supplement to the FGDC compliant metadata for the banding and resighting extracts available for researchers. Detailed here are the location codes and place names in use in the database. Since country and state/province are provided in the banding dataset, this reference simply includes the code and name, sorted in ascending order by code with no regard for country or state order.
